We firmly believe that all young people have a right to be safe, healthy and achieve their full academic potential

The Kenwood Centre provides education for Key Stage 3 and 4 pupils with autistic spectrum disorder as a primary need. In addition to this, it is likely that many of our pupils will be experiencing a degree of emotional and mental health difficulties. This may include anxiety, depression, and Obsessive Compulsive disorder and school phobia.

We aim at Kenwood to:

- provide a safe, welcoming and nurturing environment where learning takes place in partnership with the young people and where educational, emotional and social needs are supported by our team; provide an appropriate, broad and balanced high quality curriculum,
- mirroring where possible, mainstream education and linked as far as practically possible previous learning experiences;
- contribute to the psychological well-being of the young people by working closely with parent carers and where appropriate a wider multidisciplinary team;
- support those young people that may have not accessed education for long periods.
- facilitating transition programmes during admission, providing small class size with high levels of support and providing one to one time when needed.
- supporting young people with particular interests with time allocated during the week around bespoke learning.

Our curriculum

We believe that all pupils at Kenwood have the right to a high standard of education. We believe that every young person has the right to reach their full educational potential. In order to achieve this we aim to:

- provide a broad and balanced curriculum with a focus around English, maths and science;
- provide a stimulating curriculum and where possible using practical learning to gain the best participation, progression and attainment in subject areas;
- work in partnership with other professionals to seek the best opportunities to aid learning both in and out of the classroom.
- provide lifelong learning opportunities to develop skills needed in everyday life such as shopping, budgeting, cooking, developing social skills and visiting places of interest in Sheffield

Admissions

Kenwood Centre provides education for pupils with and Autism Spectrum Diagnosis who have a history of being unable to attend school. The Kenwood Centre offers placements to students who have a statement of special needs or an Education and Health Care Plan (EHC). The school caters for students who:

- are of secondary school age,
- have a diagnosis of ASD,
- have had or are receiving input from CAMHS/Ryegate
- experience significant anxiety or associated mental health issues due to their ASD

Interested parents/carers are welcome to contact the school and speak to James Gibson the Headteacher. The centre accommodates parental/carer visits through an appointments system. Please ring the centre on 0114 2557679 if you wish to visit.

The Local Authority approve and organise placement of students to the Kenwood Centre and you are encouraged to speak with them over issues related to the possibility of placement or a change of placement. The SEN team would be a first point of enquiry and can be contacted on 0114 2735679.
